j_ball430I mean, Cookie Monster is a classic character. How dare they fuck up his character because parents can't keep food away from their kids.

that isn't what it is about at all..

growing numbers of obesity make it more important to each younger generations the importance of healthy eating. I think all they are doing is teaching kids that are young and watch the programme to eat healthily....this will help them later in life as there's less chance they'll let themselves go and scoff too much junk food, getting fat or unhealthy in general.

but, I do not believe it's because of parents trying to blame someone for their lack of parenting.. the obesity rates are probably taken from kids a bit too old for that programme.

As for me, let's just say I used to be a big kid watching little kids' programmes. I still love chucklevision..
