Subject: My Website templat (suggestions + mild flaming)
Posted by glyde51 on Thu, 21 Apr 2005 13:11:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Let's start with your banner, it looks good to me, but it seems kind of plain in a way too. I mostly like that bottom part on it.

The lightning background for your content boxes is a no-no, it looks terrible. Use a darker color than the border of it (take the border's color, make it darker, then make a solid background color). A trick I love is that I'll fill the background with a grid pattern or something then make the content boxes have a 15% opaque white background so that the background of the webtemplate shows up as part of the content box, but it looks like it's a different pattern. I don't know why, that just appeals to me.

I don't think it will expand properly either. It'll need iframes or something if you wish to keep those lightning effects and then some coding to keep that lightning picture in place.

That's all for me.