Look into our company, not just the modifications. We are looking to hire in professional help and just offering some spots to our fellow Renegade Gamers. I for one havn't worked on either mod that we have supported nor have I had a chance to beta test yet either. Those modifications were done started before we had become organized. These mods are just stepping stones to what we are going to accomplish on our games. If you would like to help we would appreciate it, but if you're just going to flame us, then I would rather you not bother us.
