Sir PhoenixxIn that site he says that the prediction is that America (as in the entire country) will be destroyed by a tsunami. But anything big enough to create a tsunami that large would also wipe out a lot of Canada, a lot of Europe, half of Africa, South America, Central America, etc. (including some of the middle east) if it happened in the Atlantic... Or a lot of Canada, Japan, China, Australia, the Phillippines, (some of) India, Centra America, South America, and various other Asian countries and Islands if it happened in the Pacific.

There was a predictment from the pentagon that a part of the netherlands would be destroyed in, I think it was, 2006. So at least one part of europe will already be gone by then. Not that it really matters we dutch already live below sea level anyway.
