I honestly don't see the harm in his information being spread around the internet. He makes it his point to attack servers that many people PAY for, which shouldn't even matter, anyways. If I pay for something, and it's taken down or messed around with, I'm going to get pissed and want to do what I can to get back at the person for doing what they did. Cyberpunk is an arrogant little prick, and he's throwing around his weight (which he shouldn't have) and striking fear in everybody because of this "revenge" that he's going to have. We're the ones that should be taking revenge on his immature self. You're letting him win by making sure that he has the connection to attack others. That's like the army NOT going after terrorists because they threaten to kill more innocent lives and giving them all the room in the world by not protecting our civilians. You make a threat, expect to be hunted down.
