You've already said you don't see a point in life, Cyberbitch... how about you just make the world a better place? No one would miss you except your cheater communities of autistic special-needs kids. I doubt even your family would miss you. Speaking of family, I think you just need a big hug from your parents, because it looks like they forgot about you.

In other news, have you read my challenge yet? 1v1, no cheats? It's just that everyone says you suck at the game, that's why you cheat, so I'm just wondering if it's true or not.

No matter what he does, telling him to go kill himself like that is just fucking wrong. What if he actually carried out on that? I hate cheaters and people who use they're net skills to do harm like this, however no matter how much someone on the Internet pisses me off, I would never REALLY want them to kill themselves.

I'm not defending cyber as most of you know my feelings about cheaters, I just don't think telling someone to end they're life is necessary or reasonable over something like this.
