

---

Subject: Re: RIP.

Posted by flyingfox on Fri, 10 Jun 2005 09:06:13 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

hold on a sec.

you would take pictures of who, the cat or dog? I don't think I'd want to see pictures of a dead cat, and the dog is just a dog, it was only following its instincts. we shouldn't just take pictures of animals that kill and have some sort of quote along the lines of "there's the beast that did it!" wouldn't be proper my friend. I've done a good piece of study on dogs for a website, and I can tell you one thing, dogs are part of a family of breed called the Canidae family and that includes foxes and coyotes. Those animals are no exception to eating whatever they can get their mits on, yet when a fox or coyote commits the crime of eating livestock it's taken as a mere pest. Dogs are domesticated but not all dogs, even domestic ones, are far short of the same instincts that come with that of a fox or coyote. As such, we shouldn't be surprised when a dog does something like this.

---