I never said I was with that war shit, I said I wouldn't fight for bush and I never agreed to nothing. only thing that come close is when I said they should be free. Fuck everything else in the world and tend to the Iraqis freedom huh?

Is the Iraqis freedom worth more than your life?

I never said that you said anything. I said you seem to give off that impression, and you've just gone and agreed to that with that semi-coherent gumble of words.

The question as to "why Iraq" doesn't really hold much water, seeing how you have to start somewhere no matter how you want to go about dealing with malevolent dictators. If it were Iran, there is a likelihood that you would say "why Iran", and so on.

As for the question of giving up my life for another? Jesus said that there is no greater love than to give up your life for another. I tend to think under the WWJD mentality as much as I can, so I think that is a distinct possibility.
