If I ask Blazer to spend time with me instead of pretty much anything, I always win. But he's lucky because I pretty much don't give him shit if he wants to be on his computer all day, because I'm usually on mine at the same time.

Most of the time, women are a GREAT investment of time and money, but a lot of them are total bitches that need to learn how to treat guys. A lot of women seem to think that guys are like they are in the movies, when in fact you are mostly all about the sex (as often as possible, thank you) and someone to take care of the shit you don't want to deal with, like cleaning and cooking. Backrubs and getting head are, of course, bonuses that are worth extra special treatment.

"getting head" sametime as playing video games, i'd marry that women,
