
Subject: Re: Ban kinghigh1?

Posted by warranto on Wed, 22 Jun 2005 18:20:20 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

flyingfox wrote on Wed, 22 June 2005 13:33l guess my question is this, how do we define "making a contribution" on these forums. Making a contribution is just making a post adding something to a topic. If making a contribution here is posting something that is considered helpful or worthwhile, then it's a matter of opinion - Personally I think he's just a kid who's after some attention. I Particularly found it funny when about 10 people decided to insult him, "shit on the topic" theirselves then call for him to be banned. Do you people learn nothing. Stoop to his level and you should be banned too. If you were adults, which you aren't, you would stick him on ignore then send a message to crimson requesting the ban. That would make you correct and him wrong. He got the attention he wanted and you forgot about ripintou's message....GJ.

bottom line is if you don't like what someone is saying, don't be a little girl about it. I should really be making a poll requesting every idiot in that topic to be banned too. I know none of you would be banned, though. 5-star hypocrisy, case closed.

Quite simply, lines have to be drawn. And I'd say supporting those who support terrorism is one of them. But hey, if you feel that supporting terrorism is something that should be allowed to go unimpeded, I guess that's your perogative.

Ban for making stupid comments? Nope. Ban for insulting everyone, every chance you get? Depends, but not in this case. Ban for supporting Saddam and supporting Hitler's eventual domination of Europe... Most definatly ban worthy.
