I don't know Ripintou, I never engaged him in conversation, but I wish him god speed and safety out there, god knows he'll need it, and I wish him a safe and soon return. I've seen how little support the English troops get on this side and it really sickens me that people can be like that. At least America are patriotic enough to back their soldiers up, even if they don't agree with the war, that at least keeps moral up for them.

Imagine being out there, knowing you may not survive, only to realise your fellow country men despise you because you fight that war, how would that make you feel Kinghigh, think before you post stupid crap like you have done.
