Well well, the oil companies said at the end of Winter they "thought" oil would go up to $2.50 cents a gallon. Today I had the misfortune of Needing gasoline. They had risen the price of it to $2.50 a gallon, gee...surprise. There excuse: A refinery blew up. Now, it rose 13 cents. With 13 cents more per gallon, per person, I bet they could buy 10 brand fucking new refineries. So they found a way yet again to shit on the working class. I make $68 a day without taxes taken out. I put $20 dollars in the pump today and didn't even break a half a tank.

Before some lamer exclaims: "but gbull, dood, do you have any idea wut j00 pey 4 teh KatsUp???". My reply: I don't fucking need Ketchup, I want it. I need gas to get to work(10 miles and I start at 7am in the morning), get to my girlfriend(another 10 miles, she lives by the Factory I work in), and get to college(7 miles away). So I would like to give a big shout out, and say eat a dick, greedy oil companies.
