On City_flying a few days ago, I was a technician out on the field when a few GDI tanks went after our group of stealth tanks. I gave some repair support, and when it looked like we were falling back, I started repairing thin air hoping to fool the more distant GDI tanks into thinking there was a stealth tank in front of me. A few people fired at me, but I couldn't tell if the distraction helped at all--maybe they were just shooting at me with no regard for my perhaps lame decoy efforts.

Has anyone tried this, and does it help (the stanks, that is--I expected to draw fire for my efforts)?
