I totally disagree, I don't mind at all someone getting mass kills with a ramjet just by bodyshotting everyone, but they are WAY overpowered against light armour vehicles considering how easy they are to use.

The thing is, say I've got an artillery on Field. Some guy rushes me with a med tank. If he's really good in a med, he'll duck and dodge with the med, use cover to his advantage, and probably kill my art. On the other hand, if he's an average player, I'll kill his med in ten seconds flat and probably come out with 75% of my armour intact.

A havoc on the other hand. The absolute worst player in the world does exactly as much damage as the best player. They have infinite range and even if you got the game five minutes ago you can't miss an artillery. That's why when someone says ramjets don't take skill and a ramjet-user disagrees or says "you just got owned deal with it" they're just making themselves look fucking stupid.

A high powered rifle like that should fuck up a light armored vehicle pretty easily. Then again so should another tank...

Would make more sense if the ramjet did as much damage to vehicles as the 500 does, then the 500 did barely anything.
