
Subject: Re: Just great. Just freaking great.
Posted by cheesesoda on Tue, 18 Oct 2005 03:23:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Honestly, you do use math pretty much in every day life, but most of it is now automated into electronics, so you really don't need to learn it. For most everybody, arithmetic is all you need to know for math, and you learn that in elementary.

My parents took away my keyboard once, and that's when I went and bought two more keyboards, so they couldn't get away with it the next time they did it. My parents don't have the energy or patience to actually take the computer out of my room, not even my monitor. That worked out to my advantage.
