

---

Subject: Re: EA Partners with XWIS Community Service

Posted by Doitle on Thu, 20 Oct 2005 02:32:01 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Doubts about reliability will always exist. Tales of downtime are what course through the magic rivers of the universe and will do so unendingly. To move past this snag and prosper should be the goal of all parties. Renguard server usage withheld, the human element is as always the key facet. BHS has the drive and the emotionate passion, for service to this constiuancy. If we should all be so lucky as to have a BHS out there working weekends and nights in the rain and snow in our best interest. Friendly utilitarian angels keeping our serverlists stocked and our phat pipes clear and ready to gorge themselves on juicy juicy packets. Mmm... The argument therefore is not who to support in this wild and crazy scramble for burden, but how to support BHS in your own very special way. Whatever your talent is you can exercise it and help the community at much the same time! So go out there and knit, bake, or paint, and remember... The best things in life are free, the apple doesn't fall far from the tree, and a penny saved is a penny earned.

---