I don't really know why I went to see this movie. I probably wanted to see how it sux, because the number of Good Movies that were made after a game is as low as EA support for most of their games. Yet I swill went to see it and it was a waste of the money that I could have saved for buying the game.

Basically, if you saw the movie Resident Evil 1 or Aliens, then you have seen almost the whole plot of the Doom movie, except that Aliens and Resident Evil had/have far more (and better) suspense, were far more entertaining and had/have much more and smarter zombies/aliens that were there to kill the actors, not just to entertain us(which for the most part is their sole purpose in the Doom movie, but they still almost completely fail to do that; They are there pretty much to make you laugh because of the way they get killed)

Simple and short description of the movie: There are 3 parts.

1. First part(about an hour), almost nothing interesting happens except in the beginning where some people get killed, behind the scenes.
2. Second part is where there starts to be some action, but it is not a very interesting action since the number of the monsters is quite low.
3. Third part(the first person view and after) Is there only to make the movie even more lame and to make it longer.

Conclusion

Acting: Quite good

Entertainment: The game is probably much more entertaining(I have not played Doom 3 yet)

Special Effects: Not very good, and only few
