You know why he wasn't alone in the movie? Because at the start of the Doom game, number one, you're in an allied compound. The compound has been overrun with hell spawned demons. However, in Doom 3, the beginning, you're in an allied compound that doesn't seem to have anything wrong with it. (This is a Doom game, so that's a load of shit) Later on you meet ye olde Zombies & Imps back from Doom 1 & 2. The first Zombies you see don't have guns, but I bet they still do a good amount of damage anyway. I don't know, I've never gotten hit by one. Anyway, what I would imagine, is that the Doom movie is not about the Marine you play, it's instead about a group you apparently find later on in the game, Bravo Team. Unfortunately, Bravo Team seems to have been... Eaten. Therefore, the only survivor is that one guy.

Then again, what happened at the very start of Doom 1, that you didn't know about, was that the Marine you play as apparently did something that he wasn't supposed to. He was forced to stay at the door while the other Marines go in. Several hours later, he is forced to go in, because the entire squad is dead, including anyone who could pilot the transport. That's why you see all of those green armored corpses laying around everywhere.

Of course, this doesn't explain why the Marine that survives actually went in, but then again, it's the movies.
