Here's a hint:

When dealing with customer service (basically that's what this is), no one says they have to accomodate you. They must solve the problem, yes. But they don't have to do it fast, and they don't have to give you what exactly what you are looking for. Infact, they don't HAVE to help you, they just do because it's good for business.

Give the Customer Service people anywhere attitide, and I'm sure they won't be so accomodating to your problem as someone who is nice.
