

---

Subject: Re: Church of FSM

Posted by warranto on Thu, 27 Oct 2005 19:26:26 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

mrpirate wrote on Thu, 27 October 2005 11:59 It is kind of like science, I agree. Sometimes I wonder what, out of our science, will be laughed at by future generations. Although, I find it easier to believe in what science tells us, since it is backed up with proof (theoretical and empirical). If science says that there are some forces, and using these forces we can build something that does function x, and so we build it and it does perform function x, then I believe that science has got this right. It's possible, I suppose, that science being right most of the time is a coincidence, but that seems fairly unlikely. That being said, I do not believe that science is absolutely right about everything.

The only point I was bringing about this is that despite the inaccuracies expressed through current and past religions, the simple fact that they got something wrong should have no bearing on whether or not the idea of God is wrong.

---