Gizbotvas wrote on Sun, 06 November 2005 11:42now you can take out your frustration on Michael Moore, who is an easy target, or you can be mature enough to admit the Bush administration acted without the best interest of the American people in appointing Brown to FEMA, and for once (just once perhaps) admit the Bush administration makes mistakes. What frustration? I'm just laughing at the fact that this fat fuck can make a documentary on a disaster site to blame Bush for not helping out when he isn't helping out, either. The time and energy making his film could have been to help rescue people trapped. If you want to make Bush out to be a bad guy, you better do the same for Mr. Moore. He's just as capable of helping.

Believe me, I don't like everything the Bush administration does, and I've repeatedly said this. I just don't agree with the liberals when they try to blame every little god damn thing on Bush and his administration. I'm sorry, but I don't care to have a huge federal government. In fact, I believe that the government is too big as it is.
