gbull wrote on Mon, 21 November 2005 21:26 I've played every major GSA clan except for H20, gse, and TA I believe. But one of my old clans played gse if that counts. Anyways I have played respectable clans even if, in your eyes they are not. By respectable I mean they play a good game and win or lose, they are graceful. NE, FLY, UN, The old XD, and others of the like.

There are several facets of skill in Renegade but there seems to be a need to trend whore and be good at clan games. Personally, I don't give a fuck. I do what I think sounds fun at the present time. If a clan war strikes me as a possible fun thing to do, I'll try to organize one. If someone asks me and I don't feel like it, automatically they turn into a parrot, and can only say the word Dodge. The image of how I "pwn" at Renegade doesn't really matter to me. So it's not really an insult if someone says I suck at the game.

Really the thing that I'm saying is that if you haven't played against real good clans and such is that they are probably(mostly) better. This of course shouldn't mean crap because you aren't playing against awesome players. Just don't go saying you're better than someone especially when they've played a lot of clanwars against said bunch.(as that would defeat the whole purpose of saying you didn't give a shit) The experience of playing clanwars alone is enough to tell you what to do in each situation.
