Subject: Re: Placing Beacons... The Best way & the Best Spots
Posted by Dave Mason on Sat, 03 Dec 2005 13:16:42 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I'll save pointing out the errors in your post for now.

If you'd care to read (a skill many members of these forums seem to be highly inept) what I wrote then maybe you wouldn't have embarrassed yourself like that. I quite clearly wrote "I could speak 100 other languages and it'd make no difference at all to how I communicate on these forums."

But for y-o-u-r (note the usage of your, it is possessive!) sake, I'll also point out that I did not say I do speak 100 other languages.

To add to your utter stupidity you have also neglected to read that my knowledge of different languages has absolutely nothing at all to do with how I communicate on these forums. The universal language for these forums is English, and as long as it is, I'll god-fucking damn well speak it.

Also, if you're going to make cheap shots such as that rather unfunny, unoriginal, lame "Dick head test" at least put some more effort into it.

Finally, Kuemmern sie sich um ihre Angelegenheiten. Okay?