A) Nuke him back

C) Do nothing and hope he doesn't do it again

If you have a better idea, post it.

A)

Do not stoop down to his level and do it back. You would be no better then him.

B)

Do not kick his ass, computers can be fixed, and hurting someone physically over it will not help the situation.

C)

Bingo. Report him to the authorities. Have him pay to get your computer repaired, or buy you a new hard drive. Do not trust him again, as of now you should know you can no longer trust him.

If you are not going to report him to the authorities, atleast have a chat with his guardians (parents, grandparents, whatever), and explain the situation to him.

Be mature about the situation, do not do something you will regret in the future.
