SpoonyGaming's more fun when it's competitive, it's a personal preference.

Fixed.

No, see, there are plenty of folks who couldn't give less than half a rat's ass about how they stack up vs. everyone else in the world, and they just want to play with people who share that view. You can have your competition, have fun with it. I don't know about anyone else, I feel about as good about losing as I do winning- as long as the fight was fair. A "clan" to me is just a group of friends who like to play games together as a team.
