Actually, I have seen an old game that did pretty good surround sound over head phones. Well, good may be a bit overstatement, but it was not bad. This game was called Thief 2. But it had bugs, like sound was coming from right, but thing that made the sound was coming from left, or from other direction so it kind of got confusing.

It is a bit of creepy, when you are in darkness(this game was quite dark), and you hear strange sound of metal hitting stone floor all around you, but you can't really see it. That made the game somewhat scary.
