Play marathon servers with a crazy number of players. IE. fnfalls marathon server with 36 players. Well, ladder points are given to the team that wins. Usually, but not always, the player that scores the most on the winning team gets the most ladder points. If you play a 4 vs 4 at islands for 7 minutes, win the game, score the most points, you may get 5 or 6 ladder points. <<<<<as you can tell, I don't know the exact science behind this. However, If you play for 60 minutes in a 25 vs 25, win, score the most (MVP), you may get 600 ladder points. The time you play in a game reflects in the finishing order. This is why sometimes, the MVP is 2nd or 3rd in the rankings shown at the games end.

Simply, play in a large server, 40 or 50 players, play long games (doesn't have to be a marathon, 50 player games usually go to the time limit) and score points. Sniping lonely soldiers may be fun, but 50 kills doesn't amount to a lot at 3 points a piece. Scoring points is also important if you lose, as the MVP of the losing team doesn't lose any ladder points.
