You know what? I know Dante has his hands in a lot of stuff. I also know that he has contributed A LOT of things.

But the rest of you modders who start, promise, and then never complete anything need to lay off the "Be nice to me, or you won't get your mod." B.S..

I have yet to see any credible mod in mass use, except ACK's maps and blazeregulator. By anyone.

You are a modder by choice, and have the time to dedicate to these endeavours. I cannot, and will not make the time to do this. I am a father and choose to devote my time to my kids, not Modding.

If you as a modder make a promise to release something, you need to fulfill the promise, or lose credibility. So far the only credible teams out there are the ones who developed REOL, and RedAlert total conversion.

Everything else is half finished, never released, joke.

While the rest of you are patting yourselves on the back for mods Dante is writing FOR you, the rest of us have given up waiting for anything to come from this pathetic mod community.

It's no wonder Dante had to create the Mod exchange. No one else was going to do it. Satnd on your own, and stop letting him carry this community's only hope for life after Westwood.
