Like I said before, if Hezbollah is considered a terrorist (for helping keep Lebanon's independence) then what does that make of Israel for constantly trying to conquer neighboring countries?

When darkdemin quoted that piece of information saying how Hezbollah commits terrorist activities against Lebanon I was thinking WTF?

Hezbollah helps keep the Israeli occupation to a low and helps us keep our freedom and rights.

Whiskey you are Canadian so the only analogy I can give you of this is your "Remembrance Day". You say these Canadian soldiers fought for your freedom. What would you say if some random Arab country said the same people who fought for your freedom were terrorists?

The same situation applies here. Hezbollah helps fight for our freedom against Israel who tries desperately to conquer neighboring countries such as Lebanon; America and lots of other countries label them as "terrorists". Why? Because they keep Lebanon independent? Because they kept Lebanon from becoming Israel on the map?

btw Wikipedia isn't a very reliable source for anything.

I don't know much about the subject. What're you say about keeping Lebanon independent is fine, good motive. That does not justify terrorist attacks. Citizens should never be harmed intentionally, ever, even in retaliation. War should be armies fighting armies, not terrorists killing innocent people.
