With 3rd person you just have to aim somewhere over the enemy's head or at the head and you will score a headshot...its so much easier than in 1st person where you actually have to aim for the head for it to count.

Not only that, but you have better sight of your surroundings as well.

Another great thing about 3rd person is that if you wallhug with the V-key, you can target people without exposing yourself and then hug the wall with V and only giving your arm and gun as a target by doing so.

You were only good in the WL days, ACK and a lot has happened since then...I'm not saying your not better than most of the retards here, tho.

I don't think I could stand it if I met you in person.
