I was looking in the somethingawful forums for Loose Change discussion and found these links that were provided as debunkings:

Although I haven't been able to find debunkings on some of the points that come up in the video that I can't help but see as bulletproof evidence. For example, right where the gigantic engines would have crashed into the pentagon at ridiculous speeds, there are intact windows. How does that happen? The cell phone calls made from high altitudes where successful connection rates are below 1% are also troubling.
