I believe you. Ever have this happen... Ok you working on something for a long time and you save your work frequently and then you really get on a roll and everything starts really going together so you go for a long time with out stopping or saving then all the sudden for no reason your pc shuts down or the program has an error or something happens so you have to go all the way back to the last time you saved it, but that was so long ago your just like "oh fuck it."

Yeah that sucks.
