I think you're confusing things here.

The staff of n00bstories have one purpose: administrate and moderate n00bstories. that's it. we don't need to know much anything about the inner workings of communities, we just make sure people like you don't get far with your idiocy.

Crimson can run multiple organizations without each member knowing everything the others do. My boss at work has two other corporations he owns, runs all three. I don't know shit about the other two, except that they're doing well.

So it doesn't really seem to matter.
