Even though the application has the capabilities of a web browser such as FireFox, (Atleast I mean limited to browsing web sites), that is not at all this applications purpose. I just have not got around to implementing the actual features that are intended into the application. I am releasing this BETA version though, because it is in a worthy state to be tested. And as said in the main post, other people that test this application may find bugs/glitches/errors that I fail to see, in which BETA Testers are useful to a developer.

Alot of people have asked me so far though, what do they get out of testing my application? The only answer I can give that question so far is I can put your name under the Special Thanks section in the credits. By all means, you have every right to say "Yes I will test it." or "No, I refuse."
