

---

Subject: Re: Truth about 9/11...

Posted by cheesesoda on Sat, 29 Jul 2006 17:37:37 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

mjfabian wrote on Fri, 28 July 2006 23:17: However, I don't think "why would we hurt our own country?!" is a valid argument. Don't be so naive to think our government is completely open to us and wouldn't do something drastic for gain in the higher powers.

Like December 7, 1941? War was inevitable, but America was still too isolationist for their own good. We needed to be attacked before the public would go for this whole war thing.

Yes, it was the Japanese who attacked us, but that doesn't mean we didn't know about it. Japanese carriers were given the order of strict radio silence. That silence was broken, intercepted, decyphered, and given to higher US military officials, and rumor has it that it even reached the ears of FDR. I don't think that it fell on deaf ears, either. I believe that officials let it slide due to the fact that they wanted in the war.

I know that the government allows for things like this to happen, but I don't think that they're the ones to actually orchestrate the whole attacks. That's taking it a little too far and is treasonous.

---