{IRA}IronHorse wrote on Thu, 03 August 2006 01:03 Let me make one thing clear here. First of all you're more than welcome to stop by Vivendi any time. Do you think for one second I am stupid enough to contact you with a personal company IP address linked to me? LOL.... the computer I used is an open system so, there is no way to trace its use to any one person. Second issue here is showing up with building security over an internet argument? Imfao.... they would throw you out on your a. You started this whole deal over something stupid. I ask you to test someone for possible data hax use and you had to act like a jacka. I run game servers and have for a long time and I think I know if someone is using or not. For crying out loud I make games I know when things are just too obvious. I'm guessing this person was your friend so, you decided to act like a jacka. I really don't care and that's that. Oh and as far as the whole Comcast thing goes, I doubt they would really care but, I'm sure they would like to know your trying to get newbs to hack my system. Good luck on that though your never get through. You want to talk about me saying I'd blow your system yet, you're trying to get people to hack my server you are the most ironic person I have ever known.

I don't need to trace a public IP to you; I'm certain Vivendi did a background check on you before you were hired, so it's only a matter of asking your Human Resources Department which of their employees is a former Marine who served between 1992 and 1998, and/or who had a connection to irc.black-cell.net at 2:05 PM on Wednesday, August 2. I could possibly get a legal document from the Law office I work at to facilitate this. Second, security would not throw me out on my ass for reporting a crime. This is not a mere "internet argument"; we both live in Los Angeles, so there is an imminent threat in your declaration that you would like to kick my ass. What you said may constitute a form of Verbal Assault, which is a violation of the imminent lawless action exception to the First Amendment right to free speech. Security's purpose is to prevent violence inside the building, so their presence would be REQUIRED to prevent any kind of altercation from transpiring between us. You may be right, however, in thinking they would not allow me to be in the same room as you. However, an assault conviction would not look good on your employee record or your résumé. Third, black51b has played in Black-Cell for months, and people who cheat do not stay on our server very long. Anyone who does play for months at our server and later starts to cheat will be immediately banned. I have not personally tested black51b, but some other moderator may have done so. You would have to ask one of them about that. I also do not know him personally, so there is no special treatment being given to him. Next, your profession of making games is irrelevant if you (1) were not on the Renegade development team, or (2) have not made any attempts to create/decompile/use any Renegade cheats. Regarding Comcast: I'm pretty sure they'd be interested, because if you DO carry out an attempt to crash a server using their internet service, the FBI will get involved, and I'm sure they'd like to avoid that as much as possible. Regarding your baseless accusations that I am trying to find people to hack YOUR server: first, the word you're looking for is "hypocritical", and second, I have not, am not, nor will I ever be in the process of recruiting people to attack your server. That would be a pointless and illegal action. I also doubt you can produce any physical evidence (at least, nothing that isn't falsified) proving that I have a hand in any such malicious actions. If you can, I would love to know if your "witnesses" would be willing to testify under Oath to that effect. Regarding your ban: [01:27:43] <&BCServ4> black51b destroyed hardkil (Engineer/Automatic Pistol VS. Rocket Soldier Officer/Rocket Launcher(Weak))

[01:27:47] <&BCServ4> hardkil: cheaters
[01:28:17] <&BCServ4> hardkil: black you need to be tested like now
[01:28:44] <%havoc9826> !page hardkil you have no authority regarding tests in this server, please do not pretend to have any
[01:29:23] <&BCServ4> hardkil: don't pm me talking shit I say he needs to be tested
[01:29:37] <%havoc9826> !page hardkil and you are not a moderator, so your authority means nothing
[01:30:09] <&BCServ4> hardkil: don't get smart with me
[01:30:21] <&BCServ4> hardkil: I'll blow your damn server to hell
[01:30:29] <%havoc9826> !tban hardkil [01:30:21] <&BCServ4> hardkil: I'll blow your damn server to hell
[01:30:30] <&BCServ4> Host: (DragonServ): Temp. Banned: hardkil - Reason: [01:30:21] <&BCServ4> hardkil: I'll blow your damn server to hell - By: havoc9826.
[01:30:30] <&BCServ4> hardkil was kicked from the game
[01:30:31] <&BCServ4> hardkil has left the game
I banned you for threatening our server, simple as that. If you don't like the way Black-Cell handles moderation, go back to your own servers. Have fun threatening to crash your players' computers. I'm sure they'll be thrilled.

{IRA}IronHorse wrote on Thu, 03 August 2006 10:28Blazer wrote on Thu, 03 August 2006 03:35hardkil's other Renegade aliasesBroadcasting personal information over the internet is illegal. Thank you for the violation. You be hearing from me soon. By the way sherlock everyone knew it was me so you did nothing but, hang yourself.

Internet aliases and single portions of an IP address do not amount to personal information. Personal information includes things like full name, home address, full IP address, place of business, and Social Security Number. I work in a Law office; I'm pretty sure I know what I'm talking about, and my bosses would know even more accurate information than I do. Also, an interesting point to note: if President Bush's e-Annoyance Act (or whatever it's called) passes(d?), you'd be required by law to send me said personal information. Your threats to my person and to the administrators of Black-Cell would be sufficient grounds to declare you as such.

Anyway, I'd love to stay longer tonight, but I must sleep soon, as I have to wake up in 5 hours to get ready to go to work. I'm pretty sure you do as well. I'd be happy to continue this conversation with you later today.
