Hey, this is abit off topic but you know how Windows Xp when first is loaded onto a computer has a standard Administrator account. The first user you create after that, has to be another account with admin status, but it will not let me dealeat that account after i made it, does anyone know how i could dealeat it? If its not possible, does anyone know how to make windows automaticly log you on onto a cirtain account when it starts up.

Thanks for any help !
