Subject: Re: Swearing on public servers
Posted by Aprime on Sat, 05 Aug 2006 04:54:53 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Just because I say "nigga/mean mean black person"(word filter) it does not mean that I'm a person that feels anger or a form of dislike towards people of African origins.

But I'll refrain from employing the term if it requested by either a person or an existing rule and apologise afterwards as a proof of respect, although I may ask for to know why the person is offended by it first.

As for everything else, if the group or individual responsible for the existance of the server itself deny you the use of vulgarity, racial slurs and such, it's their right, you are free to have your personal opinion about these rules, but sharing it is hardly going to change anything.

(The ESRB notices you about online gameplay and its "dangers", therefore server owners shouldn't (EDIT, forgot to include shouldn't) technically be having to do this (but they still have the right to, and online play shouldn't be meaning constant vulgarity, either), and people below the age of 13 shouldn't be allowed to play in the first place)