If you want to be an insomniac who does not have the technology to bathe himself without dying, then be my guest. Personally, I'd rather not be under a government and paying taxes to them. I don't give a damn if they conquered the fucking world... they still are under someone else's rule. Pirates? Nobody to control them but mother nature on the seven seas. That and a few overzealous English navy men.

You talk about Vikings plundering England and getting all the gold, but he's then financially responsible for himself and his family. Pirates do nothing but take that money and spend it on a few nights on land.

Vikings are barbarians. All they know is war. Not to mention that pirates aren't stupid when it comes to attacking a ship. They know how to broad-side ships and take them by surprise. They can't just attack them head-on. Especially not a navy vessel.
