
Subject: Re: Iam Sorry

Posted by MexPirate on Mon, 21 Aug 2006 23:35:42 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

j_ball430 wrote on Mon, 21 August 2006 16:29[PAPirate wrote on Mon, 21 August 2006 19:25]the17doctor wrote on Mon, 21 August 2006 18:22it annoys me that people do this sort of stuff.

this guy who posted this has (IMO) succeeded in what he wanted to do by opening up this topic, which is to annoy people within the renegade community and cause arguments.

from what i have read he is doing, he basically hacked, which, i think, is against the laws in most countries, and isn't just morally wrong, but could land the asshole in jail.

my intention in bumping this topic was to make people aware of him, especially as he is currently attempting to recruit yet more people that he can take advantage of.

Hacking a server is not going to land you in jail, stealing thousands of dollars could.

Could? If you have enough information on him and a paper trail of said fraud, it WILL land him in jail. At least, in court, where he'd be found guilty (hopefully).

Paypal don't care - it's not a tangible item so they can use their small print to avoid returning the money. I am not going to even waste time thinking about going to the police over $38 that someone stole from me who is in a different country - If I had lost over $1000 as zer0bs have done, I wouldn't be having this discussion with you lot, should anyone wish to take things further I would happily provide whatever evidence I can to support their case.
