codemancq wrote on Wed, 23 August 2006 02:24hehe I think that is me you are talking about! I've used those names to cheat before(hypothetically). I have been playing Renegade for over 3 years, I've modded on a couple of major servers, and I'll hack whenever the hell I want, and you can't do shit about it.

Those aren't registered names either, they are just spoofed names that I inject into renegade with a memory editor. If you try to ban me, I change my name around, change my ip, and reconnect.

And for the record, I have stopped cheating. And no, Im not using renguard.

But the bottom line is, you can't stop me unless I want to stop, and if you try to, I'll spoof your name, and go on a hack fiesta with your name, permanently damaging your reputation, and getting you banned from every major server on Renegade(which I have done successfully to many cokemites just like yourself).

Im a n00b, I know. You can delete this, you can respond to this. Hell, you can even print this post out and send it to your grandmother if you want. Bottom line is, nothing you do will make a difference. So just quit your bitching, and be glad that you are fortunate to have a computer and internet.

The End.

(ps-you would be suprised how many Renegade player's passwords(this account for example) are identical to their account on this site)

(psps-I like threads like this)

And someone should care because???

Any n00b that can use google can do this, maybe not in such a complicated way but they can do it anyway.

The pathetic part is how you think that anyone actually cares...
