I dont normally reply to these kind of threads but why bother give these 'immature children' the kick that they're looking for? They want you to type things about them because they know that this is the internet and they're pretty much safe behind there computer screens.

Take my advice and just ignore them. If they cheat, then well, they cheat. They're only making themself believe that they're better then us when we know that is not true.

It's more entertaining to ignore them and watch them cry because noone is giving them the attention that they crave on.
