What I meant was the renders themselves. Of course they used photoshop to add the layout on the buttons. Even if they did use photoshop to touch up those buttons, I don't care at all. It's for the mod and anything you use to make it look better helps.

There's nothing wrong with touching things up with Photoshop, but it bugs the crap out of me when someone makes a render for a mod, a game, or just as art in general, and then uses photoshop to tweak the crap out of it and still calls it a 3D render. This is very popular with digital photography, and that bugs me a whole lot more.
