Most people aren't all too fond of installing 3rd party programs like this, I'm afraid. Though I do like the idea. To make this kind of stuff successful, it should be integrated in Renguard.

A start would be that Renguard checks the rotation of the server you are playing in and when you leave it, proposes to download a fanmap in the rotation that you don't have in your data directory. Renguard can already fidn teh rotation (it does for the motd) and if your program works, it could be combined.

I wonder if the Renguard crew would support this idea...
