
Subject: Re: unable to connect to westwood on line
Posted by desoLane on Tue, 29 Aug 2006 01:17:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Crimson wrote on Mon, 28 August 2006 13:07 Yeah, I find it impossible to believe that an ISP would schedule a downtime of a day and a half (the time that even the website was down). And if they absolutely HAD to schedule a downtime like that, they wouldn't have just forgot to tell everyone.

A hosting company chosen and specified by EA showing utter incompetence invokes no disbelief from me. This type of scheduled unannounced outage happened close to the start of the redirection. Strike-Team/XWIS did all they could prior to and after the redirection to specify a different hosting company, but EA wouldn't budge. Maybe they will now.

troopr02 wrote on Mon, 28 August 2006 13:29 Yes ofcourse, the reason renegade was not restored auto was because of "bad luck".

XWIS Def of bad luck:

extreme lack of care

It was just the way the cookie crumbled. That's all there is to it. I have personally played many hours on Renegade prior to this outage/after the redirection and never once had a problem.
