The game itself may be the same, but it's more enjoyable when it counts for something. This is true even if you aren't gunning for the cup and the prizes (my clan isn't, because none of us really play all that much, yet we still much prefer to play a clanwar over a funwar)

Look how many people have complained about the lack of a Renegade single-player ladder, either here, on the XWIS forums or in various community sites. How many of those players are actually going to push themselves 24/7 for the Supreme Commander? I doubt it's many of them, but they still want a ladder so their games actually count statistically.

The other thing is the Clanwars.cc league has in-game rules which are actually enforced by someone (stuff like base to base, backwalking the ob, etc... and obviously cheating). It can be annoying as hell when people do that to you, and thus it's nice to know you can play in a league where you're "protected" if that's the right word, from it.

Speaking for myself, if it wasn't for the CW league I'd almost certainly have quit Renegade a long time ago (probably when cheating was at its most rampant), and I know A LOT of players who are of the same mind.
