Heh, not to take away from your story, but just to compare that to my own school experience.

I was nearly the same, except I didn't care enough to bother to shut up. Heck, I still have no friends, still considered to be "shy and quiet". But, I also decided to act like I was not a loner. However, for me it's a stress filled job, and exhausts me the more I have to act.

But, the point I'm trying to make is that it does work, even when you fake it. I now work at a law office, people actually think that I'm outgoing and sociable. Even if you don't actually WANT to make a difference, if you act like you do it can still "work".
