Okiedokie, interesting start. This doesn't add weight to your "I have shitloads of money to go places and do things" theory, it either means paper rounds pay a lot more where you're from or you're spoiled by your parents. Try boasting about your financial status when you've moved out of your parents' house and are not 100% absolutely dependent on them, as you are now, and maybe you won't look so much of an idiot.

troopr02 wrote on Fri, 08 September 2006 14:55BTW, your webiste design is crap, im like what? 15-20 years younger than you and have a better website (+no ads)

Firstly I'm 24. If 24 minus 15 falls into the "15-20 years" category in your mind then I guess I studied a different set of mathematical laws as your education provided. Assuming you actually are currently undergoing education, and I wouldn't be at all surprised if you are not.

Secondly I didn't design the layout of clanwars.cc. I am involved with several aspects of it, but I did not design it. I suck with image stuff and I couldn't code my way out of a wet paper bag... on the other hand if you want someone who can run a league professionally, I'm your guy.

Thirdly your website is not better than Clanwars.cc by any stretch of the imagination. Yours is a haven for a tenth-rate clan who sucks at the game, doesn't play clanwars, is beneath most people's notice, and serves no real function at all. Clanwars.cc is a set of superbly run, competitive leagues which is responsible, along with companies like EA, Zboard etc, for giving away THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS' WORTH OF PRIZES A MONTH to players, and asking nothing in return (other than reasonably good behaviour and adherence to rules). It is also a haven for the best players each of our featured games has to offer, Renegade being a prime example. I could also make a long, long list of extremely good players who would freely state that they almost certainly would have quit Renegade for good were it not for Clanwars.cc. Oh yeah, we also seem to be the only ones who give a shit about providing clan support to Renegade, considering the fact nobody else has offered a league for over ten months and counting.

Fourthly, if that's a word, I've already ripped your "ads" argument to shreds, but we've seen many a time on this forum that every time you start an argument and lose it five minutes later, you appear completely oblivious to how much of an idiot you're made to look and stick to your guns, even though they don't seem to be loaded. It's happened often enough already, over numerous issues and by several different people, for the pattern to be conclusive.
