If you think there's a flaw in the system, then what is it? I'm positive Spoony would look at it and consider whatever problems you think there are.

^^ I've always made it perfectly clear to the Clanwars.cc community that they're totally welcome to criticise anything the admins do or voice their opinions about flaws in the system. That happens once in a blue moon anyway, and when something does need fixing, I can't remember the last time it took me longer than a day or two to do so.

Shall we compare that to your timeline for a moment? You announced the public Renguard bypass, the one which effectively makes Renguard completely useless, in January or February I think? And we've had no tangible updates on when 1.04 comes out. Hell, I asked whether 1.04 will block radar hack - you said it would - before even that, and we still have no assurance that it's on the horizon.

Again, this clan ladder of yours. By your earlier posts you started setting things in motion in February 2006. Well, the official ladder stopped working (at least, COMPLETELY stopped working instead of just working 15% of the time) in October 2005. You estimate you'll be finished round about January 2007.

But in your own words,
