I have nothing to say to you. After all those lies you gave to me... and the rest of this community...

If i were you, i would start being independant instead of relying on others to help you along. I remeber when i started modelling (which was not too long ago) and look where i am now, i'm in a mod team, i have respect here for helping others, i have done my best to support this game and this community and i like being here. I would recommend starting at the bottom and working your way up, you never know, you might join me and ApocRising when we move our mod to BF, if you're good enough...
